

About faith in the all-pervading life

From the beginning spiritual man is striving to experience the unity of God's nature. Meanwhile, more and more people disconnect from that goal. Why? The modern scientific, materially oriented person wants to create life himself by biological processes thus leading spirituality to absurdity. As we consider just the body, without the spirit and the soul, we are missing important parts of the whole. Such a view is one-sided and incomplete. Life only exists by the inherent power of being.

Jesus said:

"I am the resurrection and the life." (John 11, 25)

This omnipresent life force permeates all creation. It is the life in nature and in God's creation. Man, created in God's image, is part of this creation, and contains in his entirety all aspects of the divine essence.

Body, mind and soul are inseparable one as God the Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Believing in the existence of God leads our mind to life in the presence of God within our souls. All being is permeated with this exclusive eternal power of the Creator. God himself is this power as being life and love essentially in every being, in you and in me. When we experience this love, we experience God. Recognizing life in all beings, we recognize God. God is both the eternal and omnipresent observer in his infinite realm of creation. Human beings are part of this creation, and thus part of His love in all that is and what will be.

If we believe in the presence of God in his creation, we will feel and experience our own being alive as a living power of God in us.

Thus the word of the Apostle Paul will become real:

"I live, yet not I, but Christ lives in me." (Gal 2:20)
