

About Inspiration

In modern dictionaries the term "inspiration", among other things, points out to a "sudden, creative thought". The spiritual man however will make a distinction between secular and divine inspiration and will consider, questioning himself from where this idea arises, at what it is aimed and what power does it represent. Is the Holy Spirit the source of this thought or is it a reflection of ego-consciousness?

In the Bible we read:

"in the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God" (John 1, 1)

The divine word is the foundation of all being. As man is created in the image of God by means of his free will he has the ability to focus his consciousness on God or on other secular phenomena. By this ability a man can establish worldly or God-focused intuitive communication. By becoming receptive to divine inspiration man can comprehend and recognize the Word that has been revealed to him by dreams or visions. Spirituality is the way of the soul to connect man to God's nature. Divine inspiration will happen in and to the soul. The spirit which is resting in the heart of the soul is united with God's infinite wisdom and love and thus will receive thoughts, words and visions from the Kingdom of heaven.

Jesus said:

"My Kingdom is not of this world..."(John 18, 36)

The Kingdom of God is the Kingdom of love. A spiritual man will therefore not desire connection to the material world, but to this love of the Kingdom. Thus satisfaction and lasting happiness are obtained. Inspiration essentially will establish the consciousness "God is with us" - "we are with God" - "All people are one". Constant, active dialogue with this divine consciousness will lead us to unshakeable confidence in the presence and guidance of God. We will know the Greatness of God through the Holy Spirit, we will experience joy and satisfaction, we will finally realize the unity in God's infinite heart. Inspiration is powerful assistance to direct connection with the divine in all and a blessing for everyone.
